

UNSUPERVISED PROBATION

What is Unsupervised Probation?

Unsupervised Probation is a category of probation in which a probationer is not subject to direct or active supervision by a probation officer and requires significantly diminished requirements of the probationer, in accordance with Unsupervised Conditions of Probation. The Court may order probationers to complete specified conditions, such as community restitution, financial payments or counseling.

This category of probation is also reserved for individuals who have been granted probation but have been deported to their country of citizenship. If these probationers reenter this country illegally, they are in violation of their probation and are subject to a probation warrant for their arrest.

Contact with your Probation Officer:

The frequency of contact with your probation officer is minimal while on Unsupervised Probation. After signing and reviewing conditions of probation, it is unlikely that you will have face-to-face contact with your probation officer.

However, you must report the following to your probation officer:

- Change in address (immediately)
- Change in telephone number (immediately)
- Completion of court requirements
- New conviction of criminal offenses

Your probation officer can be reached by telephone at 928-771-3332.

All verifying documents for completed Conditions of Probation (i.e., counseling, screenings, community restitution, etc.) or written updates for the APD can be mailed to the APD at:
